International Convention

Dick Woods and Chuck Largent

The International Convention that is being held in Seattle this year is the first time it has been in Washington State.

Along with meeting Lions from everywhere it also has a lot of stuff going on for all to enjoy. Whether you go for a day, the whole week or a couple of days you can find lots to do. There are seminars, exhibits, parades just to name a few items.

There is the parade of nations that has 10,000 to 12,000 lions participating and leading the parade is the Ohio State School of the Blind marching band. There also is the Global Youth Music Competition and the Peace Poster.

You can still chose to volunteer to help out at the convention and it doesn't have to be for the whole week can just do days there as well. You also, do not have to be registered to participate or to see or participate in the activities. Some of the seminars do cost to go to them so you should be prepared to pay. You can check go online to check which ones those are so you are aware ahead of time.

Dick and Barbara then told us some stories of their conventions that they have attended. Nice presentation to hear and a great time had by them.

If you are interested or would like to find out more you can contact Chuck Largent or Joan or Al Hunter. You can also still go on the website to see what seminars and other activities are going on.
